Dear Communication Department Faculty,

As a communication major emphasizing in electronic media and sports information I have learned and obtained many skills to prepare me for the broadcasting field. During my time at the University of Indianapolis I have been able to discover my passion for television and sports reporting. I was able to participate in journalism classes, public relation classes and television classes that has allowed me to learn skills in more than one department of communication. I am confident that my educational background has given me a solid background for my career upon graduation.

In my portfolio I have included my resume, an APA Style paper, and a couple of videos that showcase my skills in both of my concentrations. These videos showcase projects that I have completed in my time here as a student. For my sports concentration I focuses on my interviewing skills, reporting and standups in different sports. I also have included my demo reel which showcases my on-air talent skills. In my academic paper, you are able to see how my writing has improved as well as my research skills in the traditional classroom.

My time here at the University of Indianapolis has allowed me to have opportunities I never thought I could have. The faculty and students have taught me many skills and lessons that have helped me grow into the person I am today. I am confident going into the broadcasting field because of my education here at the University of Indianapolis. Thank you for taking your time to review my portfolio.

Sincerely,

Crystal Sicard
